

Launched to critical acclaim!

Olwen Bourke

This is a brand new womenswear label featuring luxurious knit wear and unique leather cut work pieces. Each garment is a one off, hand made by the designer and combining craft techniques with super sexy cuts and silhouettes. This first collection is made up of butter soft leather, pure silks and satiny lace knits in muted tones of dusky pink, cream and chocolate

Designer profile: Olwen Bourke

Dublin born Olwen Bourke left Ireland's National College of Art and Design (NCAD) in 2002 with a first class honours degree in fashion design and the Enterprise Ireland and ICATA "Designer of the Year" award. Upon moving to London she began designing bespoke dresses for professional dancers and for television. Before long she was a leading costume designer for the BBC show "Strictly Come Dancing" creating gowns for the likes of Emma Bunton, Zoe Ball, Rachel Hunter and Esther Ranson. She has been interviewed about her work on TV, radio and in the print press and is currently based in London working as a freelance fashion designer and illustrator for various companies such as People Tree, Maria Parasade and Vidal Sassoon. Her own bespoke clothing line has just been launched this year."
